

ABSTRACT

A method including determining whether a digital signal processor needs a service program stored in a juke box overlay memory, and delivering the service program to the digital signal processor from the juke box overlay
5 memory over a host port interface bus is disclosed.